Summary: An update on my current situation and "Chronicles of Zulu".

Update from Goldmonk

This is not a story, but a simple update. Yesterday while working out, I injured my left shoulder pretty severely. I was in pain and my shoulder made a loud, crunching sound when I applied pressure. I tried to ice and rest it; but even though the pain has gone down, I have lost some movement in that shoulder. I do not know what is going on; I have made an appointment with an orthopedist next Monday to see what kind of damage I have done. It could be as simple as rest and ice or I could need surgery. I do not know the details at this moment. This update is to tell my fans "Chronicles of Zulu" may be delayed because of this. I will try to continue to write, but if I need surgery I will be severely disabled to writing. I am deeply sorry about this situation.
